

Six Kick-Starters Ideas For A Fun and Unique Date

www.EricDingler.com

(This is an excerpt from my eBook; Date Your Spouse. It's available on the same page on my website where you found this .PDF.)

1. Call up a local Bed and Breakfast. Many B&B's have a less expensive rate for weeknights versus weekends. Ask if they have a local's special.
2. Stay At Home Date. All though, not ideal; sometime going out just isn't an option. There could be childcare, financial or time constraints. This doesn't prevent you from planning a date though.
 - Watch your wedding video one evening.
 - Have a board game night.
 - Have a picnic dinner in the backyard.
 - Pretend your bedroom is a hotel room. Plan and stay in your room one entire day together. Seriously, never leave except for food and when struck with the "urination-sensation".
3. Real Estate Date Find an area with some houses for sale and go look and dream...especially if they are having open houses; go take a tour. Just be fair to the real-estate agent so they don't get their hopes up...just let 'em know you are dreaming for the future. And if they're cool with it, take a cookie still.
4. Time Capsule Date. Plan, organize and put together a time capsule. Don't think you have to bury it. Put it on the mantle or in the garage. Agree to when it will be opened.
5. Thrift Store Makeover. Start your date out by going to the local thrift store. Each person takes a set amount of money and buys the other person an outfit. No matter what it is, you have to wear it the rest of the date.
6. Fast Food Romance. Take you, your significant other, a nice tablecloth, candelabra and maybe even some nice dishes. Go to the local fast food joint and order up some hamburgers, fries and Coke. Find a table inside or out and set up your romantic table for two.